Objectives of the program:

Upon completion of the Lex La-Ray Technical Center Practical Nursing Program, the graduate Practical Nurse will be able to:

1. Implement Nursing care and skills required of an entry level practical nurse on an individual basis to patients in his/her care, incorporating and developing the nursing process.
2. Effectively communicate verbally and non-verbally with patients, patient's families, peers, supervisors and employers as to provide quality patient care and family interaction, and recognizing human dignity and cultural and ethnic diversity of each individual.
3. Recognize and assume responsibility of his/her education through participation in professional organizations and educational courses.
4. Recognize responsibility and participate, as a practical nurse in meeting the health needs of the community.

Philosophy of the program:

- The faculty of the Lex La-Ray Technical Center Practical Nursing Program believes and functions in accordance with the state philosophy of the Lexington, Missouri R-V School District.
- The role of the practical nurse is to provide quality care in all nursing situations with minimum and direct supervision and direction from a registered professional nurse and /or a licensed physician.
- We believe that due to the role of the practical nurse in the health community, the core of the education of this nurse must be integrated curriculum based on the biological and behavioral sciences with development of interpersonal relationships. This education includes the ability to develop conditions of the patient indicating the need for professional assistance.

- We believe in human dignity of each individual and respecting cultural and ethnic diversity
- We believe that the Lex La-Ray Practical Nursing Program should continue to be strengthened, improved and expanded in accordance with the needs of our community and Practical Nursing Education.
- We believe in a policy of non-discrimination regarding sex, age, race, color, creed, national origin or handicap, as specified by federal and state laws and regulation.
